The Seven Merchants of Halifax

IN Halifax during the distracting period of 1869, seven men to whom other men could turn with assurance and confidence, founded a sound banking institution.

From that Bank—then called The Merchants Bank of Halifax—has expanded the powerful institution to which men and women, in private affairs as well as in large business undertakings, turn to-day with confidence in its strength and power. You know this institution as—

PAST GLORIES OF THE UNION LITTLE KNOWN

Was a Club Equalling Any on This Continent

SIR Wm. MacDONALD

Donor Should be Never Forgotten by Men of McGill

In considering the alterations being at present carried out in the old grill room of the Union, the thoughts of some of the University's graduates will undoubtedly turn back to the magnificient Union of pre-war days, but the average present-day student of McGill can hardly realize the glory and the grandeur which belonged to this house a decade or more ago. Indeed it would not be going too far to say that a consideration of the Union as it was then will generally be accompanied by a feeling closely akin to awe, and most certainly by a renewed realization of the University's debt to Sir William Macdonald the donor of the building.

The Union, and, incidentally its proper name is the "Students' Union," was officially opened on February 8, 1907, although it had been in use since October of the preceding year. At that time, Principal Peterson, a man who next to Sir William Macdonald himself, was mainly instrumental in making a reality of the dream for a centre where all students might meet on common ground. Irrespective of faculties, said in part, that, knowing as he did student life in other countries, he could heartily congratulate the students of McGill on this latest example of the generosity of Sir William Macdonald. And even to-day the Union, though fallen far from its former state of magnificence, remains practically indispensable to student activities, being the general meeting place of all clubs and societies. What would the university be without the Union? And that brings forward the larger question, what would the university be without Sir William Macdonald?

Every effort should be made by the students of McGill to restore the Union to its original purpose, to return to it that grandeur and that dignity which belonged to it when it was first given to the college as a club which was equal to any club in Montreal or, indeed, on this continent for interior finish.

No expense whatever was spared by Sir William in making the interior of the building rival in magnificence the interior of any similar institution. The ball-room was particularly beautiful with its polished floors and its walls covered with the most expensive paper. The stair-case was very beautiful, and a credit to the

ENGLISH RUGBY CLUB AT MEETING

Club Banquet at Union Next Thursday

A meeting of the English Rugby Club was held last evening in the Reading Room of the Union with president Wilson in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by secretary Cooper and approved.

Manager Cleland opened the meeting by suggesting that a set of pipes be presented to Mr. J. Usher by the team, in appreciation for his services in coaching the squad for the past two weeks. A further discussion followed with regard to a dinner being held in the Union next Thursday evening, at which the officials of the games, the president of the Students' Council and members of the Montreal team would be present. It was also mentioned that any others who might feel themselves disposed to attend would be welcome.

The possibility of a trip to Halifax next autumn was next under discussion. This trip would be in conjunction with the Montreal team. A game would be played with Dalhousie University and the Wanderers. The winners to play off for the Eastern Rugby Championship.

After a lengthy discussion the previous business was approved by the members of the club present. A meeting will be held in the near future at which it is hoped that all members of the first and second teams will be present, as there is important business on hand.

INDUSTRIAL GROUP WILL MEET TO-DAY

To be Held at Maison des Etudiants

U. OF M. ARE HOSTS

Supper to be Followed by an Hour's Discussion

The first meeting of the Industrial Group of the Students' League is to be held to-night at the Maison des Studiants, 345 Sherbrooke St. east. There will be a supper at six o'clock for which twenty-five cents will be charged, so that out-of-town students especially can make it their business to have their evening meal at this place. Those who do not care to come to supper may come at seven o'clock and join in the discussion, which will be finished at eight, so that the evening may still be free.

The Students' League is the result of the intercollegiate meeting of the Student Christian Association at Toronto last Christmas. It was then decided to form study groups through the cooperation of different sectarian groups. At McGill the associations are the Columbian Club and the Maccabaean Circle, which meet with a group of University of Montreal students every fortnight, when an interesting discussion always takes place. Although it is at present under the auspices of the above-named associations, all students, whether members or not, are allowed to take advantage of this opportunity.

The meeting to-night will discuss industrial problems, which include several vital questions. The program is in the hands of the French students and, from last year's experience, it is expected that an interesting one will be arranged.

There is another similar group, which discusses International Politics and Problems of Canadian Nationalism and meets this coming Thursday evening at the same place as to-night's group. This week they will discuss "Canada in the Light of the Recent Imperial Conference," Gordon W. Levy of Arts '25 will speak in English, and E. Brossard of the Universite will speak in French. The subject will then be thrown open for discussion.

Last year the study groups were a splendid success, and it is hoped that they will continue to be so. The study groups are obviously a very import-

MONTREALER MAY BECOME AMBASSADOR

New Minister From U. S. to China to be Appointed

DR. THOMSON

McGill Graduate Gaining Recogition for Books of Travel and Political-Services

The Rev. Dr. Thomson of the Presbyterian College is being widely recommended in Chinese and American newspapers at the present time for the Ambassadorship of the United States in China. Dr. Stuart Thomson, a scholar and authority on the United States constitution, was educated at McGill, where he graduated in the Faculty of Arts and studied at the Presbyterian College. His only full sister is married to a Montrealer, H. Victor Bernier. He has also several half-brothers, half-sisters, and other relatives in this city.

The reason why there is so much sentiment for the appointment of Dr. Thomson as American Minister to China is principally the fact that he was prominently connected with the foundation of the Chinese Republic and was influential in securing its recognition by the world powers. Besides this, he held an outstanding position in the promotion of good relations between China and America. Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the founder of the Chinese Republic and its first president (now President of the South China States), has said of him that he is "entitled to utmost attention."

It has been said that Montreal has been the home of two world-famous explorers, Iberville, the founder of Louisiana and the two cities of New Orleans and Mobile, and Stuart Thomson. Iberville's house does not exist, but the house in which Dr. Thomson was born is still standing on the north side of Grand Trunk St. half way between Seigneurs and Richmond. It is a two-story brick house with a gateway. His mother and father are buried in the Mount Royal Cemetery. Dr. Thomson's first position after leaving McGill was that of junior secretary to Sir Joseph Hickson, the general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway. He began his travels in Sir Joseph's private car.

Dr. Thomson is chiefly known for his books, some of which are "China Revolutionized," "The Chinese," "Fil of Pilippines," "Bud and Bamboo of China," "Estabelle," and "A Day's Song." Lord Kintore, Governor of South Australia, said of his books that they are "deservedly standard." Dr. Chang Yuan Chi, Minister of Education and president of China's greatest translation press, "The Commercial" of Shanghai, said that they are "the only books on China written by a foreigner that catch the Chinese

TO ELECT LEADERS FOR PARLIAMENT

Literary and Debating Society Meets Today at 5 P.M.

There is a general meeting of the Literary and Debating Society called for this afternoon at five o'clock in the Reading Room of the Union, the busines of which will be to elect two leaders for the coming session of the Mock Parliament which is scheduled for the twenty-ninth of the month a week from Thursday. R. K. Jones, who had consented to continue in office from last year, has left for England and the post of leader of the government is consequently left vacant. In addition to this there is the position of leader of the Opposition for which a holder must likewise be chosen this afternoon.

As the first meeting of the Parliament is now but a few short days away there will have to be considerable work done in order to perfect the policies of the various parties and to gather a following for each. It is therefore the wish of the Lit. executive that there be a goodly representation on hand to express an opinion and to cast a vote in this matter. There are two offices which require no small amount of skill and organization in their handling and providing, as they do, the leadership of student thought in the Mock Parliament they demand more than passing notice from the Undergraduate body.

THE HOCKEY SEASON

To-day sees the opening of the McGill Hockey season when the candidates turn out this afternoon at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium. In hockey as in rugby the Red and White has always acquitted itself creditably and the present season should bring nothing but honour to the university. As in rugby the team must this year be more or less of an unknown quantity in the intercollegiate series but we can hope that the same spirit that dominated the grid-iron warriors will animate the hockeyists in both game and practice. In the graduation of Cyril Flanagan, the captain of last year's senior squad, McGill loses one of her most famous stars whose place on the team will be hard to fill. While the return of Matty Dineen will materially strengthen the sextette and there are several intermediates who will make strong bids for positions, the great hope of McGill is in the newcomers. Each year should see the advent of new players of the first calibre and this season should be no exception.

The Coach of the team is one who has proved his sterling worth again and again and Mr. Frank Shaughnessy to whom we refer, should mould an aggregation that will go a long way in the intercollegiate race. This first practice, therefore, should have the best of support from all those who purpose turning out.

ON WIT

Have you ever stopped to think of the "line" of talk that you use when you think that you are saying amusing things? Do you ever stop to consider that there may be something in your jokes that hurt your fellow-being's feelings? Here are two questions that occurred to us the other evening and the more we thought about them the more we saw that in many cases there was room for serious reflection. Perhaps you too, if you stopped for a moment, might find somewhere a need of improvement in this respect. We do not intend to decry humour as an evil. We believe that few things are better for either the spirit or the physical body than a good laugh. But if the humour is unclean or is of a nature to cause pain to an individual, then the good is lost. There is a type of humour that is neither painful nor defiling and yet, carries with it all the fun-making qualities that go to make a good joke and it is the type that all should try to make their own. If an individual has to use sarcasm to cause a laugh then there is room for improvement and the same may be said of those who resort to obscenity, only here the need is vastly aggravated. If a man's moral scruples allow him to fill his mind and retain in it the dirt that is so easily collected he is doing himself far more injury than he probably realizes. The degrading effects of unclean thoughts are known and anyone who has hopes of true success would do well to keep his mind in other channels. There is plenty to laugh at in this world without resorting to the foul or the cruel and a mind full of good clean wit is the surest sign of mental health.

CONSTITUTION OF SOCIETY CONSIDERED

Women's Undergraduate Society Met Yesterday

SECOND MEETING

Letter of Thanks From Poppy Day Comm. Read

The second of a series of short meetings of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society was held on Monday in the Common Room. The purpose of these meetings is to discuss the proposed constitution of the Women's Students' Society. The first four articles of the constitution were discussed at the meeting of Friday, Nov. 15th. At Monday's meeting article V was thoroughly gone into. It deals with the personnel of the Executive Council of the new society, which was to consist of the Presidents of—"the Athletic Society, Delta Sigma Society, Student Christian Association, Societe Francaise and any other society which may be formed in the future and have the same standing as the existing ones, and the Woman Editor of the "Daily," and a representative from each of the following departments and faculties:—Arts, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Graduate School, Social Service, School of Graduate Nurses. Each representative shall be a full course student in her Faculty or Department."

"On all executive matters one half of the members of the Executive shall constitute a quorum."

Clause 3 dealt with the Duties of the Executive which included that the administration of all business of the Society should be vested in the Executive Council. The Executive Council should be the only recognized medium between the women students and the University authorities or the general public. It shall control all funds and shall act as a court before which any student may be called to account for a misdemeanour."

Article VI was the cause of some lively discussion which resulted in amending the original constitution. This article deals with certain organizations, recognized as regular college societies, which would be subsidiary to the Student Society and under its control, namely the Delta Sigma Society, S.C.A., Societe Francaise and Athletic Association, and all other societies formed by women students of Society shall have final jurisdiction McGill. The article follows:— "This over the policy, conduct and management of each such society. No change in the by-laws and constitution of any subsidiary society shall be valid without the approval of this Society and its executive."

That "A budget shall be presented annually by each society to the Executive for confirmation, at a special meeting."

"The resident of this Society shall act as an advisory member, without the power to vote on the Executive of all the said subsidiary societies."

Another item of business included the reading of a letter of thanks from the National Poppy Day Campaign. As there still remains three more articles to be discussed a meeting will be held on Wednesday at one o'clock in the Common Room.

THE COLLEGES AND THE KU KLUX KLAN.

Recently we have heard much talk and propaganda about the Ku Klux Klan and the colleges. We hear that chapters have been formed in Harvard and that attempts have been made to enlist the men of Princeton and Union into the ranks of the Klan. Pamphlets have been broadcast countrywide in an attempt to interest the intellectual classes in the cause of the Invisible Empire.

Here will come the test of the colleges and the college men. Will they allow themselves to be drawn into an organization that seeks to divide one factor of the country from the other, or will they stand united against an influence that seeks to disrupt our traditions and laws? The college men of to-day should be the leaders in all branches of life. Will they stand up and demand that Americanism in its strictest sense be upheld?

If the colleges come within the influence of an organization that "is afraid to show its face" the purposes and aims of the American colleges have been defeated. If th sanction or support a spirit of lawlessness and underhand attempts to gain unlawful aims, it is time for the colleges to close their doors.

The colleges and the college men of the country must stand united against the Klan and any such organization that seeks to gain right and order from behind masked hoods against the will and intelligence of the people. It is significant to note that, in the three above-mentioned colleges, attempts to establish chapters of the Ku Klux Klan were complete failures.

Futhermore, it is not our purpose to give the Klan the satisfaction of our general notice, but we feel that a single statement of the above calibre is entirely warranted.

—Brown Daily Herald

THE IMPERIAL

How the guileless actions and the boundless faith of a child can influence the lives of its elders is well portrayed on the screen in a picture entitled "A chapter in her life," at the Imperial. The two sons of an elderly, gentleman disappointed him in his idea's of a what their choice of a life partner should be: one by marrying a widow much older than himself, the other by entering the hands of matrimony with a poor man's daughter. The former died and the latter, disowned by his father, lived a life devoid of most of the comforts money can bring, but brightened by the childish charms of an only daughter. A time came when the father and mother had to go to a foreign country without their beloved daughter, and as a last resort sent her to her grandfather. It is sometimes comical, sometimes pathetic, to see how the obdurate grandfather gradually yields to the childish fancies of his grand-daughter, and how, through her influences the family are brought together again and all past disagreements and grievances become memories.

On the vaudeville bill, Miss Clasper excelled in dancing, and showed a marked aptness for the art. Her shadow dancing was excellent.

The play upon words, effected by Chafer, Carr, and Weymer, brought roars of laughter from the audience. The relative merits of a perfect automobile and an ideal woman were involved, to the disgust of the two males indulging in a heated discussion.

The Beaumont sisters show how with gathering age, the popularity of actresses begin to fail and how they rather pathetically realize that the brilliance of their youth has faded. The sisters also dispicted the manner of singing in a past generation, and in the present, rousing a good deal of mirth.

Kaufman and Lillian, as flashily dressed young man and ungraceful young waitress, succeed in being foolish.

The last number, representing an old gentleman, and a young one on golf course, is well received by the audience. These two actors sang "Oh, how I'd like to see that old gang of mine," to the delight of everyone.

MANY GAMES PLANNED FOR BASKETEERS

Seniors and Intermediate A's Hold Strenuous Practice

GOOD TURNOUT

Chances for Retaining Last Year's Championship Look Good

McGill's chances for success in basketball this year seem unusually bright, all the men of last year's Championship team with the exception of Eddie Crain being back this session.

A strenuous practice of the juniors and intermediate A squads was held last night in the Montreal High School Gymnasium. Four full teams took the floor, two games being played. Amaron will likely make a permanent place at guard while the other defence man will probably be chosen from Hilton, Quackenbush or Rafalovitch. Any of these last three men should make a good team-mate for Amaron.

Manson, last year's centre, has not been out to practice owing to an injury to his ankle sustained in football. He will probably be present at Wednesday's practice and no doubt will live up to the reputation he earned last year.

There are several likely candidates for forwards among them being Little, James Turpel, and Mendlesohn.

McGill's ancient rival, Varsity is not quite so fortunate having lost a good part of her team through graduation. On the other hand Queen's, is considerably better off. All of last year's team is back again and it is rumoured that they have some new men from the West and from Ottawa who are expected to do great things in basketball.

There is quite a full schedule for the senior basketeers this year. Thier first game against M. A. A. A. is to be played on Dec. 8th. The following week they are to journey to Burlington to do battle with the representatives of the University of Vermont. The Christmas holiday tour in the United States includes games with the University of Pensylvania, West Point and the New York Crescents. The intercollegiate schedule has not yet been definitely drawn up but play will probably start about the last week of January or the first week in February.

OTHER CAMPUSES

Aerial Stunts Banned

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—Trustees of the Ohio State University at their last meeting adopted a resolution forbidding all flying by any sort of aircraft over any assemblage of people on the university campus.

The action was occasioned by the repeated antics of aviators over football throngs in the Stadium. During the recent game with Colgate a stunt flyer doing smoke writing over the bowl caused cold shivers to run up and down the spines of many spectators. Another aviator hovered over the Stadium during the Iowa game.

Ambitious Stude!

Syracuse University claims its most picturesque member to be Abol Ghasen Bakhtiar late of the Persian Royal army, who hiked from Bismark, S. Dak., to be on hand for the opening of school.

Trousers

The tradition of wearing those "awful, dirty, undignified looking corduroy trousers" that has been established at practically all of the Western universities, does not meet with the approval of the U. S. C. co-eds.

No Players Plucked

Records show that the University of Idaho football squad which started training for the 1923 season did not contain a man ineligible on account of scholastic training last year. This applies both to candidates from the '22 freshman team and to those of last year's squad eligible to further competition.

Young Student

The youngest student ever boasted by the University of Michigan is entering this fall. He is Alexander, son of Professor Max Winkler and Mrs. Winkler. He will be 15 on November 20.

Hazing Forbidden

Hazing has been strictly forbidden at Syracuse University. Students found guilty of hazing are subject to expulsion and suspension from the university.

Professor Elopes

Professors are heartless creatures. On the afternoon that he eloped with one of his senior students, Professor Tucker of the University of Arizona assigned the advanced lesson to his English class before dismissing it with an apology.

HOCKEY PLAYERS BEGIN TO TRAIN

Men for All Teams to Practise at Stadium

With the closing of the football season, the centre of college activities, in athletic lines, has automatically shifted to hockey. The club has already appointed its officers, and these are now preparing to make this year's hockey record a worthy one.

At the Stadium at 5 o'clock this afternoon the first of a series of work-outs will begin. This will consist chiefly of soccer, running and other exercises, to develop the wind and endurance of the players.

Every man who has played can or desires to play hockey is urged to be present, and to bring their own togs. Those men who have been playing football need not attend as they already have good condition.

This year many of last year's Senior players will be present, but this should in no way discourage any newcomers, because as always the McGill team will be composed of men men chosen solely upon their merits. In the Senior ranks, Morrison, Morris, Dempsey, McGerrigle, McNaughton, Bell, Dineen, Wyse and Lynch are expected to turn out.

To the Juniors special attention will be given this year, as there are prospects of organizing a junior intercollegiate league. Loyola have expressed their opinion, as being favourable and it is thought that with co-operation and assent of MacDonald college and the U. of Montreal a league of interest could be formed. The games would provide additional week-end sport for the winter months and in addition would serve greatly in developing and training the oncoming material for the senior squads of future years.

DR. MARTIN'S ADDRESS TO MEDICAL MEN

Dean Gives Practical Talk to Undergraduates

USEFUL HINTS

Crocker's Orchestra Supplied Music to Student Society

The Faculty of Medicine is trying to extend on frontiers of knowledge and carry on the fine traditions handed down over a century. Dr. C. F. Martin, the Dean, speaking before the the Medical Undergraduates Society last night gave an interesting talk, replete with valuable pointers drawn from his long experience as student teacher and physician.

On being introduced by the President, Frank Emmons, Dr. Martin paid a tribute to the staff of the University It is necessary to corrilate the preclinical foundation subjects with the clinical subjects. A student in the earlier years may do much to this end by roaming around the outdoor clinics of the hospitals and picking up information here and there.

Specialization is necesary because of the enormous field and one should take an interest in some special line. This makes for the best kind of research. Dr. Martin jocularly remarked that he did not suppose any of the audience knew the course of Jacobson's nerve. At this time Dr. Martin referred to our splendid staff in the Department of Anatomy and of Physiology and the value of these studies in clinical work.

"The study of Medicine is not all diagnosis, and one is apt to forget that it is as much an art as a science. This must be remembered if one is to get the most out of his medical course. The art of healing helps the science of healing. A practicioner must take the patient into his confidence before he can work his art."

A firm foundation must be laid if one would become a "top-notcher" in his profession. After graduation one should spend at least a couple of years and four or five a e better, in studying along one line. A large practice soon after graduation is fatal in most cases to further great improvement in one's knowledge.

A vote of thanks to Dr. Martin was given with hearty applause.

The meeting was well attended. The president, Frank Emmon, after calling on the secretary, E. A. McNaughton to read the minutes of the last meeting. Discussion of a checking system at the hospitals was left open.

Crocker's Orchestra supplied much appreciated syncopation to the embryo medicos.

MUSIC CLUB TO HEAR INTERESTING ADDRESS

A very interesting programme has been arranged by the R. V. C. Music Club to be given in the Common Room Thursday afternoon November 22nd. at four o'clock. An address on the life and works of Claude Debussy by Miss Muller, illustrated by Miss Betty Cameron with piano solos and Miss Gouin Fielders who will render some of the compositions of this famous musician.

An important item of business is to be brought before the meeting, the drawing up of a constitution for the Club and its submission to the Undergraduate Society.

Tea will be served at the close of the meeting and it is hoped that all members will make an effort to be present.

Said the typewriter to the piano; "We certainly are keyed up."

UNIVERSITY GYMNASIUM ACTIVITIES

Meeting Yesterday in the Union of Members

VARSITY-McGILL SERIES

Was Suggested That There Be a Union of Different Colleges in Gymnastics

Necessary arrangements for this year's activities of the University Gymnasium Club were made at a meeting of the members held in the Union yesterday. Captain Delehay was in charge and Mr. Findlay coach of the team, was present.

The appointment of McKyes as secretary-manager of the club, a position which he has been filling temporarily, was made official by a vote of the members. He was instructed to send letters to Paul Scott, Wilfred Werry, and G. A. Holland graduates of McGill who in the past have been outstanding among the University's gymnasts and who are at present residing in Montreal, asking them if they could turn out with this year's team and assist in getting the men into shape. Already Mr. Holland has signified his intention of being on hand at the Wednesday night practices and his presence doubtful, however, whether Paul Scott, who captained McGill's team two years ago of Wilfred Werry, an expert on tumbling, will be able to attend.

To arouse enthusiasm in gymnastics aside from the Intercollegiate meet, the club has communicated with several athletic bodies in the city with regard to the possibility of their entering gymnasium teams in interclub contests. Westmount Y. intends having a team while M. A. A. A. and Central Y. are still undecided and N. A. A. as yet has not replied. But there is strong possibility of keen competition this season between city teams, as well as the regular Intercollegiate contests.

A discussion of the proposed Intercollegiate Union from various angles next held the attention of the meeting. This Union would consist at present of McGill and Toronto clubs, with the probable future entry of Queen's and R. M. C. Mr. Findley and Dr. Lamb have drawn up a constitution for the proposed Union and this was approved by the members. It will be sent to Varsity and when they accept it the Union will be formed automatically. This organization will have charge of all arrangements in connection with Intercollegiate gymnasium meets.

Mif, captain of the Varsity Club, has set forth several propositions, centering around the entry of Queen's and R.M.C. into the Union. If these it has been suggested that a combined team from Kingston compete in this, year's meet.

Another idea expressed by Varsity was the holding of this year's meet in Kingston, assuming the entry of the Kingston teams, and the retaining of the gate receipts by the home teams. McGill does not agree to the holding of the meet in Kingston until next year as the holding of this season's contest in Montreal will even up the Intercollegiate meets in this regard, with two held in Toronto and two here. But after this year the clubs will be on an equal footing and in a fairer position to enter on the new arrangements. The meeting approved of Varsity's suggestion that the home team each year should retain the gate receipts, a custom observed in all the other Intercollegiate sports.

Mr. Findlay proposed that certain men be appointed to be in charge of the club practices which are held Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights. The following men were appointed: Delehay, McCletchie, Consiglo, Kirby, McKyes. The captain and secretary will draw up a schedule stating which nights these men will be responsible for the handling of the practices.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Captain Delehay made it clear that the club is not run by a "clique," that the judges of the eliminations are absolutely —impartial, and that new men stand an equal chance in making the team as do the veterans. Also he stressed the value of new men entering the club who have come from other colleges and often bring new ideas with them which can be used to advantage by the team.

FENCERS MOVED TO FIELD HOUSE

Extra Fencing Class at 5:00 P.M. This Wednesday

Last week the Fencing Club was moved from the Union to the new field-house at the Stadium. The various inconveniences which the fencers were subject to, have in the main been done away with. Their belongings can now be kept in their own lockers, this there is less danger of loss of fencing outfits. The quarters are much larger and better lighted than in the past, which means that all members of the Club can fence the whole period.

The three groups which have been created of the class are as follows:—

GROUP I.

Donshkess, Maxwell, Pangman, Bloomfield, Halbrook, Bernstein, Korenberg, Yaphe, Knee, Francis, Puddicombe, Latham White, Bydwell, Wolochan, Kelland.

GROUP I.

Whelen, Wolfe, Schneiderman Smith (L. H.), Kurie, Durley, Mathewson, Barrett, Brodie, Mathieson, Converse, De Rosia, Price, O'Hier, Shepherd, McCombe.

GROUP III.

Loomis, Coleman, Helfield, Poncarcell, Myers, Smith D. D., Munro, Berlind, Morrison, Taylor, E. L. Johnson, H. D. Hall, L. S. Cossett, H. Atkman, Silverstone, Tombs.

The above are all expected to be present at the next practice on Thursday to elect captains of their respective group. At the B. W. F. Smokers, which will be held in the near future, the best men out of each group will compete. Fencing will be a feature of the smoker, so to make it a huge success, the members ought to co-operate warmly.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 p.m., Mons. Raimonde will be in the Armory at the field house. The members of the club are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity of receiving some extra instruction, which will be given gratis to all the members, they are asked to kindly be present.

The members of the club will be interested to know of the organization of an extra Mural fencing Club. Under the name of "The Fencer's Club" this Society has in its membership a number of college professors and private individuals. They are coached by Mons. Raimonde, and are expected to begin work almost immediately. They will fence at the field house, and it is believed this should prove a great boon to the McGills' fencing Club.

The "Fencers' Club" would be glad to have amongst its members any students who are desirous of getting some coaching more intensive than what they have been receiving heretofore. The fees for students are low inasmuch as they can get 10 lessons for $5.00. At this rate, 50 cents a lesson, it is expected a number of students will avail themselves of the opportunity. A 10-ticket booklet can be obtained for $5.00.

PAST GLORIES OF UNION LITTLE KNOWN

architect, Professor Nobbs of the well known firm of architects, Nobbs and Hyde, who are in charge of the present alterations and any repair work which may be done from time to time.

The Annual Board room of to-day was then the Union library and contained a particularly fine collection of books, but as the years passed there was gradual disapearance of volumes until two or three ago the remaining ones were handed over to the McGill library.

The cloak-rooms on the first floor have been converted into the Tuck Shop and the offices of the students' council. The present cafeteria was then a dining-room with table service and all the flat-wear used on the tables, as well as tureen dishes and fruit dishes were of solid silver. A few of these still remain as mute evidence of the vanished magnificence of the "Students' Union," and may be seen behind the counter in the cafeteria.

Across the hall, the room now being repaired was the Grill room with an open grill on the St. Catherine's Street side, where one might obtain a club sandwich for twenty-five cents, a cup of coffee for three cents, or a lamb chop for fifteen cents!

The doorman and all the attendants were in livery while the waiters were perfectly dressed.

Probably no better example of the high regard in which the club held can be given than the fact that its use was refused for an international fencing competition, contests which are carried out in the finest European ball-rooms, but which were not in keeping with the purpose of the Students' Union of McGill. In the minute books of the Union cuse Committee are reports of magnificent functions held in the Union, and of the visits of distinguished personages who dined and spoke there, in the days when it was in the highest sense, a centre of student social and intellectual life. The reading of these reports would certainly prove a revelation to the average McGill student of to-day.

The deterioration of the building may be traced to the years of war when the building was converted into a barracks. And though that deterioration may be lamented no one can deny that the house was never put to a finer use in all the seventeen years of its existence.

To-day repairs to the building are being carried out for the first time in years. At present they are confined to the old grill room. The work is well under way and the room is expected to be ready for the Junior dance. The House Committee have secured and are securing estimates on the costs for several other alterations for the house but it is feared that lack of funds will prevent additional work being done this year.

But it is certain that sometime in the future in that golden era when there are dormitories at McGill—the Union will be restored to the grandeur and magnificence which it had in the days when it was a club wherein men of all faculties might come together on a common footing, when it was all that its name implies, the "Students' Union," when it carried out the high purpose intended for it by its donor, Sir William Macdonald a man to whose memory the students of McGill owe a debt they never can hope to repay.

THE THREE NUTS

At nine o'clock this morning in room 827 of the Westmount Municipal Court House, the curtain is being rung down upon a heart-rending tragedy, the details of which shocked the minds of all the readers of yesterday's "Daily." Three prominent men from the Faculty of Arts and an equally prominent R.V.C. sophette were pinched while in a Ford runabout and ignominiously hauled to the police station. The Three Nuts, having in their benevolence constituted themselves fatherly advisors to all who will stand for it, wish to hold this up as a horrible example to unsophisticated freshmen and freshettes.

Freshettes—never, never go for a ride in a Ford runabout of the type that is seen behind the Strathcona Hall unless the driver is a staid and sober senior, equipped with common sense and a driver's license. For, consider the awful example of your senior whose reputation is now ruined forever.

Freshmen—never, never give a lady a lift unless you are sure you can take her to her destination, and never in a car that lacks paint and license plates. And furthermore, don't try to satisfy your curiosity as to the appearance of the inside of a police station while she is with you. For, consider the disastrous results to your peace of mind and pocket-book.

Don't break the hearts of the dear old Three Nuts.

"Whom are you taking to the house party?"

"Well, I like Rosamund's form, Helen's lips, Charlotte's eyes, Marion's hair, Adelo's arms, and Bee's—and Bee's—Oh, I guess I'll take Bee."

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

Bishop Farthing Gave Inspiring Address

Be loyal to the best traditions of that you are members of one of the most esteemed universities of the Empire, and be worthy of your calling, were the words of advice given to students of the Diocesan College by Bishop Farthing at a banquet held last night in honour of new students of the Anglican theological college at McGill. The Bishop in a short address in responding to a toast to the Church gave sound words of advice to the newcomers strongly urged that the theolog take his full share in upholding the honour of McGill in every phase of academic activity.

The students and guests assembled in the Library and at 7 o'clock and without wasting much time proceeded to the dining hall which was prettily decorated and quaintly illuminated with candles arranged on the three tables. The president of the Students' Society, F. T. Norman, was chairman.

Among those present were:

Bishop J. C. Farthing, Dr. E. I. Rexford, Principal; Dr. G. Abbott-Smith, Dr. O. W. Howard, A. P. Willis, representing the Board of Governors; Rev. R. K. Naylor and Rev. A. Gale, representing the Alumni; and a representative from each of Wesleyan, Presbyterian and Congregational Colleges.

The programme of toasts was as follows:

1. The King—F. T. Norman.
2. The Church.—M. Lidstone.
 replied to by Bishop Farthing.
3. The Faculty.—Henry Hall.
 replied to by Dr. Rexford and A. P. Willis.
4. The Alumni—W. Hatcher.

5. The Freshmen—F. T. Norman.
 replied to by C. Fenton.

Following the banquet the freshmen were hunted and after a somewhat strenuous tussle subdued and conducted to the Convocation Hall where they were initiated by the older men.

RADIO CLUB ASSEMBLED IN THE UNION

Lecture on the Morse Code Was Given

OFFICERS ELECTED

Members of Club to Donate Parts to Form Radio Set

J. L. Millers, President of the Radio Association, gave an interesting lecture on the morse code at a small but enthusiastic meeting of the above club held in the Union yesterday afternoon.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to the reading of the minutes and business. Among the items discussed was that of obtaining a room for use as a club room. It was decided to ask permission to use a room in the Physics Building for this purpose.

An executive committee composed of a representative from each faculty was elected. The following men were chosen:

Arts, Thompson; Medicine, A. Rittenberg; Science, W. H. Moore; Commerce, E. McDonald; Pharmacy, R. F. Apter; Law, to be elected.

The question whether a radio set should be purchased with the association's funds or with voluntary contributions from the individual members was raised. After considerable discussion, for and against buying, it was decided to accept contributions of different pieces of apparatus from the members of the association. Several members present promised valuable and useful parts and a good beginning was made towards owning a really first class set. It was decided to buy whatever pieces were lacking and that every member of the club should have a part in the erection of the set.

The president requested that those present who had not already done so, should pay their fee to the treasurer and several who were in arrears paid up.

The question of placing an arial on the Physical Building was then brought up and the secretary was instructed to write a letter to Dr Eve asking for permission to do so.

The president then started his instruction on the Morse Code. He started with the fundamentals, saying that the right way to learn the code was by the "Sound Method." After a little practice it becomes almost second nature to write down the code symbols for various letters and words and no difficulty whatever is found in reading messages in morse. Miller then went on to give a practical demonstration by means of a buzzer. He gave the radio fans a chance to learn the codes of letters and figures, sending them slowly at first then at normal speed. Those present showed considerable aptitude in learning the code, and all agreed they enjoyed the president's talk greatly.

IS IT WORTH WHILE?

There are two classes of people, those who give and those who take. As a rule the man who believes in the philosophy of getting all he can while giving as little as possible sneers at the man who still is actuated by the belief that it is better to give than receive. Yet the names that are at the top of all of the honor rolls of history are names of the men who have written the books, composed the music, fought the battles, ministered to society and given the results of their research not for monetary wages but for the satisfaction that come with service.

Here in the Western conference the men who are in control of athletics believe that competitive athletics are valuable because they place a premium on loyalty, unselfishness, the spirit of giving and the desire to do one's best for the principle. They said that amateur athletics if they are to serve as a moral force shall not in any way be commercialized. They are convinced that once we substitute the baser motives for the finer ideals our athletics will have no place in the scheme of education.

The man who would favor putting college football players on a salary basis if consistant would have mercenary soldiers fight for national honor on the field of battle. Likewise the man who asks why a college athletic should not sell his attainments to the highest bidder would question the sanity of the scientist or physician who would not make all he could by selling his discoveries. These cases are not entirely parallel but the underlying principle is the same. Some may call the men who have given their lives to the development of the best in athletic dreamers, but if we like to think that there are still some things that men will do that they are not paid for doing and if we think that playing the game is one of those things we should hesitate to countenance any efforts to commercialize college athletics.

—Daily Illini.

He (after the Med. dance)—"I am going to kiss you before I take you home."

She—"Take me home at once."

HOWLERS

The following amusing interpretations of quotations from Shakespeare, Tennyson, Wordsworth, Coleridge, etc., were culled from the examination papers offered by candidates for the Junior Matriculation Examination.

The Ancient Mariner.

"When the Ancient Mariner describes his sufferings to the Wedding Guest, the Wedding Guest does not go to the wedding but becomes a better man."

"The Wedding Guest is a mirror through which the feelings of the Mariner are revealed to us."

"He blessed the animals in the water, not knowing that by doing so his repentance would be removed."

"In the South Seas he took a fit, the air was so warm. Two women came and decided his fate by rolling the dice to decide whether they would take him home or leave him here to die."

"Another instance of this is where he holds the Wedding Guest with his magnetic eye together with his long grey beard and bony hand."

"When the mariner finished his story of sorrow the wedding guest who was on his way to a wedding full of joy, turned and thanked the mariner, went home and resolved to be kinder to animals."

"At the first of the poem he holds one of three men with his eye."

"Unaware"—he was so far gone he didn't know what he was doing.

"The ancient mariner was alone on the boat with his companions who had died for want of a drink."

"Gushed"—spontaneous combustion of true prayer.

"The dead men lying on the boat with the mariner gazing down on them and the slimy greenish forms of the moving snakes and to think that he was allowed to live with such dirty animals as if he were as bad as them and could live in such dirty conditions as they."

"The wedding guest called the mariner a beard faced loon."

"His appearance warped the boards of the ship."

"The mariner was a feeble old man whom a mere jogge might push over the brink of life."

Julius Caesar.

"To think that Brutus should have so much regard for the feelings of another is almost incredulous."

"Portia, unlike Calpurnia, is a real wife to Brutus."

"Portia stuck a knife into her thigh to show how strong she was."

"A woman's might"—she always wants to say what she thinks but she doesn't."

"As Portia cannot hold her counsel she is finally killed by Sulla when he sends out his postcription lists."

"To prove to Brutus that she could keep a secret she stapped herself without a whimper."

"Brutus said they didn't kill Caesar just for pleasure or to practise with their swords."

"Portia had a strong mind. When Brutus tried to put her off on the subject of himself she had a mind to tell him just what she thought."

"She says she knows Brutus; if he were ill physically he'd tell her."

"Caesar said, 'Brutus, thou know not what thou doeth."

"At home in Rome when Lucius is awakened Brutus says, 'I know no personal cause to spurn at him."

"Portia said—you don't love me any more—but Brutus said, 'You are as dear to me as the dew drops from my own heart."

"She succeeded in wrestling the story of the conspiracy from him.'

"She died of her own free will like Brutus only she drank poison or fire."

"Portia was brave; she cut her knee and endured intense pain rather than be thought a coward."

"They are put in the mouth of Cassius and Cassius says these words when he is speaking."

"Portia was unable to bear up under the strain and poisoned herself; This is an example of a woman's might."

"Portia instinctively knew that Brutus was going to do wrong by the way he walked the garden."

"At Sardis Brutus might have punished the soldiers guarding him for not having seen Caesar's ghost as many another leader might have done."

"Cassius says that he is amazed that a man who is deaf in one ear and can't swim very well should be chosen king."

"Portia went about the right way in asking Brutus, first by begging then by asking."

The Lotus Eaters; Ulysses, etc.

"Happy isles are isles where everybody is happy and forgets everything and hasn't got to work but just eat and sleep."

"Tennyson practically always describes the land in some way by nature."

"Happy Isles—where the Greeks went when they died by an ancient belief."

"They live and sleep and eat the lotos without troubling about sleep or clothes or the ordinary worrries other people had."

"The Romans believed that you had to be washed beneath the waves and reach the Canary Islands that way; those islands were sacred to the Romans."

"Starting off with when he goes to show us that he is about to describe something which happens after something else has happened. Thus he gives us to believe that he means his death."

"Happy Isles—Isles of the Sirens."

"He says that one of these isles there is only one law. Suit yourself and you can do anything you want."

"All was joy and peace, not even the gods bothered them."

"Happy Isles; Isles of continual pleasure where beautiful women lived doing nothing but singing."

Locksley Hall.

"He was a dreamer interested in nature and other unpractical things."

"The young man is trying to find comfort after he has been jilted by Amy in many ways one of which is the world's gradual advancement until the establishment of democracies."

"He lived alone where nature was plentiful."

"In time the kingdom will be ruled by the common people which will cause much trouble."

"Their aim should be to keep the non-conformists in subjection and awe."

"Locksley Hall—after his lady friend had married another."

"Lap't in universal law;—since God made the world and the people in it the common law has prevailed that a male shall love a female and female a male."

"There will be conference which has just been held at Geneva which will keep all the world which has been in a terrible turmoil which will keep all the people still for awhile."

"Laws agreed on by all the nations and slumber shall reign supreme."

Ode on the Duke of Wellington.

"The Duke was always true and kept or tried to keep everything he possibly could."

"all men hear a great deal from listening by their ears."

"The Duke of Wellington never failed to be truthful on every occasion.

"Many men took advice from what Wellington said and kept it emblazoned on the objective."

"Bear the palm means literally—the hand."

"Wellington's words were a beacon while all men followed and relied on for council and advice."

"Our echos are the tracks we leave behind us and they touch whomever we come in contact with'"

General.

"I bit me arm and the blood I sucked."

"A sail, a sail, Cried I."

"And the fragrance of the mighty voice

"Came rolling on the breeze."

"Oracle;—a volcano giving amphibious answers."

"A calling of the sea—'Fish, fresh fish.'"

"There was a ghostly queer look in his voice."

"It was weird and mysterical."

"Moths and mosquitoes and other insects of their ilk."

"His description of autumn night with the fruit dropping gives you the sensation of utter solicitude."

In conclusion one might add some examples from the papers of students in Pass English at the university:

"Lamb's humour was grime and sardonic."

"The main idea of Burke's political thought is prescription."

"He also used the octa varima."

"Fascinated by the French revolutional motto, 'liberty, equality and freternaty.'"

He withdrew into his inner self and contemplated his own mind."

"Byron tries to appear as a wild man and his life really was from the matrimonial point of view.

"Bake fills himself with mystical and childish thoughts and then overflows."

"Whimsical badinage is something one should not stoop to do."

"Wordsworth reveals to us the fact that men who do not wear fine clothing can feel and think deeply."

"Wordsworth is at his best in such poems as an Ode to a Coo-Coo."

From the First Year Papers.

"Grey's Elegy is a defence of the farming class."

"It is a long poem although written in verses of four lines."

"It means that Andrea del Sarto's wife wrote to her husband who was in France executing a painting saying that she held the reigns of government in her family and that he was to come right home."

"It would be scarcely right to choose one sonnet and say you like it best of all because they are so short so I take his sonnets as a poem."

"The poet does not make use of an introduction to his poem but at once introduces his subject; this stimulates the reader's interest."

"Gray succeeded well in combining melancholy and popularity."

"He drew people and different scenes and pictures all with human beings in them."

"Poems were handed down from generation to generation by the mouth."

New Stadium For University

University of California's new stadium is rapidly nearing completion, and will be ready for the "big game" with Stanford University, according to the latest reports of the construction company. It is similar in shape of the "Yale Bowl," being a huge over concrete structure situated in the mouth of Strawberry canyon. The stadium which will seat 72,000 spectators, represents a cost of $1,263,000. The money to meet this cost was raised by subscription among the students and alumni of the university.
